

QPASTT

Queensland program of assistance to survivors of torture and trauma

Newsletter April, 2015

From the Director

My name is Tracy Worrall. I am the Director at QPASTT, and I would like to welcome readers to this first edition of the QPASTT newsletter for 2015. QPASTT is a remarkable organisation and I continue to feel immensely privileged to be able to witness the positive contribution that this service makes to the lives of people who have fled persecution and war to seek safety in Australia every year. This newsletter aims to inform community members, service providers and QPASTT members about our services, staff, projects and upcoming events in general. I hope you find it interesting, informative and entertaining. Please feel free to send us any feedback that you consider appropriate. Happy reading!

QPASTT: Restoring light when the flame of hope is out

Queensland Program of Assistance to Survivors of Torture and Trauma or QPASTT as we are widely known is synonymous with a tree.

Very often clients and friends of QPASTT will always ask you; oh you mean that place with a tree? Yes it is but why the tree? For us at QPASTT this question is just a start of the conversation.

Our green tree logo portrays the recovery process from torture and trauma, which is our core area of service. The rock on which the tree is growing represents the hardship survivors have experienced, both before and sometimes after migration.

It represents the process of regrowth for the individual, families and communities. This is initially very painful but often culminates with flowering again in a new environment while its branches signifies our client's ability to reach out and re-connect with others, which in turn, if there is a positive response, feeds the tree's growth.

Simple right? Everyone would wish such growth is dramatic. In our area, however, this process involves extensive quality service delivery to our clients.

All the work we do is captured well on our website but we are also happy to give a snapshot in this newsletter for those of you reading about our services for the first time. We will focus on giving information about our programs each newsletter so we can keep in touch!

For more information pop into any of our offices and outreach services in regional areas for our translated brochures.

African Australian Women's Network

Mavice Hove, member of the QPASTT Community Relationships & Capacity Building Team met with the Lord Mayor Graham Quirk, when he invited women from African Australian Women's Network (AAWN) for morning tea. This was after AAWN held a successful International Women's Day celebration that was partly sponsored by Brisbane City council.

The Vision of the African Australian Women's Network is to be "united for the greater good of our communities". Their Mission is:

- To unite African Australian women from diverse backgrounds and support women's initiatives by creating a safe place that fosters a sense of belonging and networking.
- To create a platform that acknowledges, celebrates and shares the richness and diversity of African cultures.
- To promote full social and economic participation in every aspect of Australian life.

Meet QPASTT Staff

Meet Jim!

Jim Schirmer has been a counsellor in the Asylum Seeker Support Team since he joined QPASTT in September 2013.

In particular, Jim has a special role in support unaccompanied minors (UAMs) and helps to run group programs with these young people.

Outside of QPASTT, Jim enjoys watching sport, reading philosophy, cooking nearly anything and playing with his six-month old son.

Meet Saira!

Saira Buksh has worked at QPASTT for the past 8 years and her role in the Administration team she supports clients and staff with many administrative tasks. She sits at reception so will often be the one to welcome you to QPASTT!

In her free time, Saira loves socialising, entertaining, reading, watching movies and going out for coffee!
